R E P O R T

TO THE

SECRETARY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
AND TECHNICAL INSTRUCTION FOR IRELAND.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit the following Report and Tables concerning Irish Migratory Labourers, agricultural and others, who annually seek employment at a distance from their own homes, especially in England and Scotland. The problem of the movements of labour within a country or to neighbouring countries is one of the most interesting from a social and economic standpoint. The present Report, in the main, deals, as former Reports have done, with the migration of agricultural labourers—the so-called “harvest-men”—from Connaught and certain districts of Ulster to Great Britain, but returns are now being furnished of other migratory labourers, including girls and women, which will be found tabulated, for the year 1903, according to occupations, in Table VI. (p. 44).

In my Report for 1900 I went somewhat fully into the character and extent of this temporary movement of Irish labourers, and it is consequently unnecessary to do more than deal with the strictly statistical aspect of the problem in the present survey, which should be read in connection with former Reports.

The migration of agricultural labourers, chiefly from certain districts of Connaught and Ulster, to Great Britain has continued now probably for two centuries.

In his famous Querist (published 1735) Bishop Berkeley has some pertinent and suggestive interrogatories on the subject of Irish migratory labourers, which have a significance even to-day:—

“Whether it be not a custom for some thousands of Frenchmen to go, about the beginning of March, into Spain, and, having tilled the lands and gathered the harvest of Spain, to return home with money in their pockets about the end of November? (Q. 525.)

“Whether of late years our Irish labourers do not carry on the same business in England, to the great discontent of many there? But whether we have not much more reason to be displeased at this commerce? (Q. 526.)

“Whether, notwithstanding the cash supposed to be brought into it, any nation is, in truth, a gainer by such traffic? (Q. 527.)

“Whether the industry of our people employed in foreign lands, while our own are left uncultivated, be not a great loss to the country? (Q. 528.)

“Whether it would not be much better for us if, instead of sending our men abroad, we could draw men from the neighbouring countries to cultivate our own? (Q. 529.)

“Whether, nevertheless, we are not apt to think the money imported by our labourers to be so much clear gains to this country; but whether a little reflection and a little political arithmetic may not shew us our mistake? (Q. 530.)”

A great shrinkage has, however, taken place in the area from which those migrants were drawn. In the year 1841, for example (the first year in which a statistical investigation of the matter was made), migrants went to Great Britain from twenty-four out of the thirty-two counties in Ireland. In that year the County Dublin contributed 5,625 (or at the rate of 15·1 per 1,000 of the inhabitants at that time) to the total number of Irish migratory labourers; while this year (1903) not a single migrant is recorded as having left Dublin county. On the other hand, it is noteworthy that there has been a marked proportionate increase, though there has been a falling off in absolute numbers, in the county of Mayo, which now, as in 1841, supplies much the largest number of the migratory labourers. In fact, the ratio per 1,000 which the migratory labourers of this county bear to its population has enormously increased when we compare 1841 with 1903, the rate for 1841 being 26·8 per 1,000, and for 1903, 46·5 per 1,000.

Nor, in view of the continuous emigration since 1841, can we, in my opinion, draw any very comforting inferences from the decline or total disappearance of migratory labourers from the larger number of Irish counties. It is not, so far as one can see, that work has been found for them at home, but that they have left the country permanently.

In the year 1841 the number of migrants was estimated at 57,651; this year the number has fallen, according to our returns to 17,566.

The decline has not merely been absolute, so far as all Ireland is concerned, but, as the subjoined statement shows, relative to the population in the years compared:—

| Year. |     |     | No. of Migrants. | Population. | Per 1,000 of Population. |
|-------|-----|-----|------------------|-------------|--------------------------|
| 1841, | ... | ... | 57,651           | 8,196,597   | 7·0                      |
| 1903, | ..  | ... | 17,566           | 4,458,775*  | 3·9                      |

* Census of 1901.

These results were, of course, to have been expected, having regard to the very great decline in the population in the past half century, and in view of the further fact that at least three-fourths of that emigration has been from the class of small farmers and agricultural labourers; which class, of course, also supplies the largest number of migratory labourers.

The actual migration in any series of years is naturally the resultant of a number of circumstances, such as the permanent emigration from this country; the curtailment of the cropped area of the cultivated land of Great Britain; the increasing use in England and Scotland of agricultural machinery, especially self-binders, for harvesting operations; the influence of the exodus from the rural districts of Great Britain on the demand for labour, and on the other hand, the local development in the districts in Ireland from which such labour comes, of fishing and other industries.

Apart, however, from the annual fluctuation in the total number of migrants brought about by the causes just alluded to, this annual migration has become a settled feature of the economic position of certain districts of Ulster and Connaught.

The following Table (taken from the Labour Gazette of September, 1903, and prepared by the Board of Trade) shows the number, as estimated from returns supplied by the Railway and Shipping Companies, of migratory labourers who left the province of Connaught for England and Scotland up to the end of August in each of the years 1900 to 1903:—

* The difference between these figures and the corresponding figures for previous years is owing to the fact that through fares are now in operation from the Great Southern and Western Railway Companies' stations to England, via Collooney, and it is therefore not necessary to re-book at Collooney as in former years.

† The numbers booked by steamer are approximate, as no distinction is made between migratory labourers and ordinary passengers. The figures given in the Table are calculated, as in previous years, on the basis of an estimate furnished by the Steam Packet Company. The number booked from Sligo is not given, as the Company state that it is impossible to distinguish them from other passengers. It is probable that some of those starting from Ballina come from Sligo.

‡ A few of these go to Liverpool.

In addition to the above, a small number (109 in 1900, 79 in 1901, 53 in 1902, and 40 in 1903) were booked from stations on the Midland Great Western Railway in Provinces other than Connaught.

With these general observations I pass on to a detailed analysis of the Tables for the current year, which are in continuation of those presented annually since the year 1880, and are comparable with the Statistics of Migratory Labourers published in the Report on the Census of Ireland for 1841. It appears from these Tables that there were in June of this year 17,566 persons, or 3·9 per 1,000 of the population according to the Census of 1901 who either had left or intended to leave their homes to seek employment as labourers elsewhere; of these, 3,515 had not left their homes at the time of the enumeration. The corresponding number for 1902 was 19,176, showing a decrease of 1,610 in the present year. It should be remarked that the figures for these years include females—the number for 1902 being 890 and for 1903, 724; in the years previous to 1901 the figures were given for males only. Comparing the male migratory labourers with the figures for 1902, there is a decrease of 1,444; but comparing the purely agricultural male migrants in 1903 (14,220) with those for 1902 (15,551), there is a decline of 1,331. In fact, the total for agricultural male labourers is the lowest for any year since 1895, when the number was 14,119.

As in previous Reports, the chief points of interest with regard to migratory labourers may be dealt with under the following heads:—

I. Their distribution in Ireland when at home.

II. Their relative proportion to the population:—

(a.) To the total population;

(b.) To the adult male population (in regard to the male labourers).

III. Their social position when at home as measured by the extent of their holdings, if any.

IV. Their destination.

I.—THE DISTRIBUTION OF MIGRATORY LABOURERS IN IRELAND WHEN AT HOME.

The number of Migratory Labourers returned in 1880 was 22,900; in 1881—21,322; in 1882—16,836; in 1883—14,780; in 1884—14,413; in 1885—13,140; in 1886—12,375; in 1887—12,423; in 1888—11,723; in 1889—12,028; in 1890—14,081; in 1891—13,129; in 1892—14,783; in 1893—14,761; in 1894—15,615; in 1895—14,119; in 1896—16,312; in 1897—16,237; in 1898—17,902; in 1899—18,910; in 1900—19,022; in 1901—19,732; in 1902—19,176; and in 1903—17,566.

More than three-fourths of the entire number for 1903, namely 13,530, are natives of the Province of Connaught. Of these, 9,264 come from the County of Mayo alone, which county furnishes over one-half of all the Irish migratory labourers. They were distributed among the various Poor Law Unions in Mayo; the principal being Swineford, 4,073; Westport, 1,680; Castlebar, 1,214; and Claremorris, 1,044 (see Tables II. and V.). In 1841 also, Mayo, as will be seen from the Census Report for that year, was the principal source of these migratory labourers. The numbers furnished by the other counties of Connaught in 1902 are:—Galway, 1,634; Roscommon, 1,474 (including 1,243 from Castlereagh Union); Sligo, 906; Leitrim, 252.

The next province in importance, as to the supply of migratory labourers, is Ulster. The total number furnished in 1903 by Ulster is 2,758, of whom 2,179 (or 79·0 per cent.) are natives of the county of Donegal. The numbers furnished by the various Poor Law Unions in this county include—Glenties, 1,052; Dunfanaghy, 560; Inishowen, 236; Millford, 197; the other unions furnishing but small numbers. It will be observed that the numbers for the four unions named make a total of 2,045, showing that nearly all the migratory labourers of Donegal, and over 74 per cent. of all from Ulster, are natives of the very limited area along the Donegal coast comprised in these four unions. Of the Ulster counties, the next in order to Donegal is Armagh, which furnishes 264, of whom 179 are natives of Newry Union. The county of Down furnishes 136; Cavan, 50; Londonderry, 40; Monaghan, 36; Antrim, 27; Tyrone, 20; and Fermanagh, 6.

The province of Leinster furnishes 692 migratory labourers. These are natives of the counties of Wicklow, Louth, Longford, Wexford, Carlow, Kildare, Meath, Queen's, and Westmeath, which respectively furnish 426, 191, 28, 17, 9, 8, 5, 5, and 3. There are this year no migratory labourers from the counties of Dublin, Kilkenny, and King's. The 426 migrants from Wicklow are wholly composed of the Arklow fishermen who annually attend the Herring Fishery in the South West of Ireland and subsequently in the Scotch Fisheries.

The province of Munster furnishes 586. They are distributed as follows:—Kerry County, 360; Cork, 142; Limerick, 40; Tipperary, 22; Waterford, 17; and Clare, 5.

Comparing the foregoing analysis with the corresponding returns for the year 1902, it will be observed that the total number of migratory labourers has decreased by 1,610. In the province of Leinster the numbers show an increase of 56 or 8·8 per cent.; in Munster a decrease of 123, or 17·3 per cent. In these two provinces, however, the numbers were so small in 1902 and 1903 that they could have but little appreciable effect on the social condition of the labouring classes or on the labour market. In Ulster the number in 1902 was 3,033, and in 1903 it is 2,758, being a decrease of 275, or 9·1 per cent. A decrease of 274 occurred in Donegal, which county is the chief residence of the migratory labourers of Ulster. The number for Connaught rose from 9,877 in 1886 to 10,148 in 1887; it fell to 9,941 in 1888; rose to 10,271 in 1889, and to 12,034 in 1890; fell to 11,069 in 1891, rose to 12,661 in 1892, fell to 12,589 in 1893, rose to 13,474 in 1894, fell to 12,061 in 1895, rose to 13,294 in 1896, fell to 13,224 in 1897, and rose to 14,535 in 1898, to 15,557 in 1899, to 15,878 in 1900, fell to 15,318 in 1901, to 14,798 in 1902, and to 13,530 in 1903; the last number showing a decrease of 1,268 or 8·6 per cent., when compared with that for 1902. These figures show that a large number of the inhabitants of Connaught still pursue the avocation of migratory labourers. Mayo, as usual, heads the county list, but shows a decrease of 806, or 8·0 per cent. as compared with the number for that county in 1902.

II.—THE PROPORTION WHICH THE MIGRATORY LABOURERS BEAR TO THE POPULATION OF THEIR DISTRICTS.

The proportion which the migratory labourers bear to the population resident in the districts from which they come is a matter of more importance than the absolute number from any particular area. In Table I. the proportion of migratory labourers per 1,000 of the population is given. It will be observed that the proportion for the whole of Ireland is but 3·9 per 1,000, but when considered by provinces it is found that the proportion in Connaught is 20·9 per 1,000; in Ulster it is 1·7; in Leinster, 0·6; and in Munster, 0·5.

A more exact analysis of the numbers furnished by Connaught shows that in Mayo the proportion of migratory labourers to the population reached the high ratio of 46·5 per 1,000; in Roscommon it was 14·5; in Sligo, 10·8; in Galway, 8·5; and in Leitrim, 3·6.

In Ulster the proportion reached 12·6 in Donegal, but in no other county, except in Armagh, where it was 2·1 per 1,000, did the rate exceed 0·5 per 1,000.

In Munster the highest rate per 1,000 is 2·2 in Kerry, the next in order being 0·4 per 1,000 for Cork; in the three other counties of this province the numbers are small and, consequently, of little importance.

In Leinster the respective rates for Wicklow, Louth, Longford, Carlow, Wexford, Kildare, Meath, and Queen's, are 7·0, 2·9, 0·6, 0·2, 0·2, 0·1, 0·1, and 0·1 per 1,000 respectively. No migratory labourers have been returned for Dublin, Kilkenny or King's, only five for Meath and Queen's, and three for Westmeath.

The following are, therefore, the counties in which the influence of the migration of labourers is most likely to be felt:—

|----------------|-----------------|-------------|-----------------|
| Mayo, ...      | 46·5 per 1,000. | Sligo, ...  | 10·8 per 1,000. |
| Roscommon, ... | 14·5 per 1,000. | Galway, ... | 8·5 per 1,000.  |
| Donegal, ...   | 12·6 per 1,000. |             |                 |

In Leitrim the number (3·6 per 1,000) appears to be sufficiently large to produce an appreciable effect.

The following statement shows the proportion of migratory labourers in all those Poor Law Unions where it exceeds 10 per 1,000 of the population, according to the Census of 1901 :—

| Poor Law Unions. | Countiesinwhich situated. | Rateper1,000. | Poor Law Unions  | Countiesinwhich situated. | Rateper1,000. |

| Glennamaddy, ... | Galway, ...                       | 39.6                  | Ballina, ...     | Mayo, ...                         | 21.4                  |
| Castlereagh, ... | Roscommon, ...                    | 37.0                  | Rathdrum, ...    | Wicklow, ...                      | 16.0                  |
| Dunfanaghy, ...  | Donegal, ...                      | 35.5                  | Tuam, ...        | Galway, ...                       | 15.7                  |

The proportion of male migratory labourers to the adult male population is an important element. This is shown in Table III., and the results are still more striking than when the numbers are viewed merely in relation to the total population.

In this statement Mayo appears in a still more remarkable light, for it is found that no less than 173.2 per 1,000 of the adult male population usually seek employment at a distance from their homes. In no other county in Ireland does the proportion reach 51 per 1,000. In Roscommon the proportion is 50.4 per 1,000; in Donegal, 38.4; in Sligo, 36.9; in Galway, 30.1; in Wicklow, 23.5; in Leitrim, 12.6; in Louth, 9.6; in Armagh, 7.6; in Kerry, 5.7; the rate not rising to 2.5 per 1,000 in any other county.

III.—THE SOCIAL POSITION OF THE IRISH MIGRATORY LABOURER AT HOME.

The social position of the Irish migratory labourer at home is best estimated by the fact of his being or not being a landholder; and, if a landholder, by the extent of his holding. Table IV. contains the required information, from which it appears that of the 17,566 Irish migratory labourers 14,118, or 80.4 per cent., are not landholders. The percentage of migratory labourers who are not landholders, is shown by Provinces in the following statement :—

|                |     |     |     |     |      |
|----------------|-----|-----|-----|-----|------|
| Connaught, ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 78.0 |
| Ulster, ...    | ... | ... | ... | ... | 85.7 |
| Munster, ...   | ... | ... | ... | ... | 91.6 |
| Leinster, ...  | ... | ... | ... | ... | 95.5 |

The landholding migratory labourers are proportionally more numerous in Connaught than elsewhere, and the average amount of land held by those who are landholders is greatest in that Province. The number of landholders ; the number having over five acres ; the number with holdings not exceeding five acres ; and the percentage of the number with holdings not exceeding five acres are as follow :—

| Ulster,    | ... | ... | 395  | 308                                | 87                                       | 22.0   |
| Munster,   | ... | ... | 43   | 22                                 | 27                                       | 55.1   |
| Leinster,  | ... | ... | 31   | 17                                 | 14                                       | 45.2   |

A further reference to Table IV. will show that it is only in Connaught that any considerable number of migratory labourers hold farms exceeding an area of fifteen acres. In considering this point the poor quality of the soil in many parts of Connaught must be borne in mind.

An analysis by Counties and Unions shows that the condition of the migratory labourers in relation to the land bears pretty much the same ratio as when considered by Provinces ; the proportions no doubt vary within small limits, as will be seen by inspection of Table V. It will be observed that of the 9,264 natives of Mayo, 2,437, or 26.3 per cent., are landholders, and that of these 2,437 only 336, or 13.8 per cent., occupy holdings not exceeding five acres.

IV.—THE DESTINATION OF THE MIGRATORY LABOURERS.

The destination of the migratory labourers is the next point requiring special attention. The following statement shows the destination of the migratory labourers from each province :—

| Provinces. |     |     |     | ElsewhereinIreland. | England. | Scotland. |
|------------|-----|-----|-----|-----------------------------|----------|-----------|
| Leinster,  | ... | ... | ... | 465                         | 123      | 104       |
| Munster,   | ... | ... | ... | 295                         | 187      | 104       |
| Ulster,    | ... | ... | ... | 392                         | 257      | 2,109     |
| Connaught, | ... | ... | ... | 103                         | 12,186   | 1,241     |
| Total,     | ... | ... | ... | 1,255                       | 12,763   | 3,558     |

The particulars by Counties will be found in Table V.

It appears that 72·6 per cent. sought work in England, 20·3 per cent. in Scotland, and 7·1 per cent. in Ireland. A comparison of the provinces shows that in Leinster of the 692 labourers, 227 sought employment in Great Britain, and 465 in Ireland. In Munster, of the 586 labourers, 291 sought work in Great Britain, and 295, or 50·3 per cent., merely migrated to some part of Ireland. In Ulster, of the 2,758 labourers, 2,366 sought work in Great Britain (257 in England, and 2,109 in Scotland), and 392, or 14·2 per cent., sought employment in Ireland. In Connaught, of the 13,530 labourers, 13,427 sought work in Great Britain (1,241 of these in Scotland, and 12,186 in England), and but 103, or 0·8 per cent., in Ireland.

The Chairman of the Midland Great Western Railway has, with his usual kindness, furnished the statistics of "Harvestmen" travelling over that Company's lines to Dublin, which will be found in Table VII., and the authorities of the Great Southern and Western Railway have also courteously supplied figures regarding Harvestmen booked from the stations on the Waterford, Limerick, and Western portion of their system. The customary returns from the various provincial ports have been kindly supplied by the Registrar-General for Ireland, and a summary thereof is given in Table VIII. From the two Tables referred to (the Railway and Port Statistics) it would appear that 37,034 labourers travelled as passengers journeying to seek employment at a distance from their homes.

It will be observed that this number is very much greater than the Board of Trade Estimates quoted on page 9 or than the number of migratory labourers shown in the Tables compiled from the Returns made by the Enumerators of Agricultural Statistics. In considering these differences, it must be borne in mind that a large number of the agricultural labourers who migrate annually to Great Britain pay two visits, and this is an element which it is impossible accurately to eliminate from the emigration and railway returns. On inquiry at the Midland Great Western Railway, I have been informed by the Chairman that his Company "have no means of knowing how many travel twice in one season," nor do the Returns supplied by the Enumerators of Emigration Statistics to the General Register Office contain any information on this point.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your obedient Servant,

WILLIAM P. COYNE,
